Town Schedules Workshop on Plan

Ellington—The Planning and Zoning Commission has scheduled a public workshop to obtain input from Ellington residents on a number of issues to be addressed in the update to the Plan of Conservation and Development. This workshop is the first in a series of workshops targeted at gaining public input in the planning process. In addition to reviewing statistical data on population, housing and the economy, the workshop will be an opportunity for discussion of conservation topics to include natural resource protection, open space planning, farmland preservation, and historical preservation. .

The workshop is scheduled for:

Thursday, June 22, 2006 at 6:45 PM
Town Hall Annex
57 Main Street

The most recent Plan of Conservation and Development for the Town was adopted in 1999. The current planning effort will evaluate the 1999 Plan and consider how the Plan should be amended to reflect current issues and priorities.

Residents are encouraged to bring their views, concerns, and questions to this and subsequent workshops to ensure that the updated Plan of Conservation and Development accurately reflects the community's vision. This Plan will be used to guide future conservation and development activity over the next decade and beyond.
